- Q: Retrieving the contents of an HTML5 style tag in JavaScript What I'm trying to do is gather up all the values in the style tag. So I basically want to make a handlebars for a button. Lets say I add an image style to a button, I want to get that image style's path. How do I do that. I know you can.querySelector('button') but I want to get all the properties of that style. A: CSSStyleSheet should work. The spatial locality of three-dimensional structure within human alpha and beta globins is lost on reassembly. The proteins alpha and beta are globins that play a major role in the oxygenation of hemoglobin and are members of the same globin gene family. The x-ray crystal structure of globin has been determined and revealed surprisingly divergent forms of alpha and beta and a dynamic nature of the protein chain. Here we show the consequences of this structure for the mechanism of oxygen binding and dissociation. It was observed in the crystal that the pair of interacting alpha1 and beta1 hemes were separated by not more than 25A. At high pH 4.5, the heme pairs are separated by 70 to 80A within the same molecule. On reassembly of the two globins, the same 70 to 80A separation distance was observed in contrast to a separation of over 200A in the crystal. Thus, the alpha and beta globins interact in a much more restricted fashion in solution than in the crystal. This was shown by sedimentation equilibrium studies. We argue that

Q: Is the TSHR a target for anti-aging? During the last year I wondered whether the TSHR was somehow connected to aging. Since I know that TSH only stimulates the thyroid to produce thyroid hormones, I wanted to know whether it is possible that those hormones can accelerate the "ageing process". On one site it is written that thyroid hormones accelerate "ageing processes". I did not find reliable websites. Could you give me a reference?

A: Triiodothyronine (T3), the active form of thyroid hormones in the body, has been correlated to delayed human aging: T3 mediated up-regulation of insulin receptors in the aged human skeletal muscle suggests that the age-associated loss of insulin sensitivity may be modulated by T3 and thus contribute to the development of type 2 diabetes. In another study done in mice, the authors found that adult T3 treated mice were not healthy enough to reproduce normally and had mutations in their sperm. In both of these studies, T3 was given to adult mice, not embryonic mice. It's simply possible that T3 treatment early in development could accelerate healthy aging, but this has not been studied.

The present invention relates to the art of electric power distribution, and more particularly to a method and an apparatus for regulating a system of electrical power transmission. It is well known that most electrical power systems require a means of measuring the instantaneous power flowing through a load. With this measurement information, a system of electrical power distribution can be regulated to maximize the amount of power transmitted at an inexpensive cost. Furthermore, with this measurement information, the system can be regulated to control power transmission to a load that may require a varying level of power at different times. Typical systems for measuring power employ a power conductor connected between a load and a power source. The power conductor consists of a grounded transmission line which may be of several gauge thicknesses. At a particular point along this transmission
